Elysium: Deadman's Curve Brewery in the Flats

9/13/24— Over a month has passed since the night the leadership in Cleveland's nightlife went silent. The dust has settled so to speak as the vampires who were out of town on August 6 have returned home to an empty Elysium, empty 'club houses', and a resounding absence of their allies. In the wake of this, they pick up the pieces from not only the storm that damaged their beloved city they struggle with their internal tempests of questions as to what happened and where their kindred have gone. However the quiet does not stay for long as the power vacuum invites the lost, the depraved, the havenless, and the shamed within the city limits to stake claim on what was left behind.

Through unconventional means, in of all things, an ad in a tabloid has brought you here tonight, to a private party at a brewery in the flats. This advertisement nagged at you until you chose to darken the doorway seeking answers and maybe even other lost souls such as yourself. Welcome to Cleveland By Night.

The locals, the 'burb dwellers and the Savannah transplants converged upon the brewery at the bequest of the Seneschal Levi Lisuzzo, the only remaining member of the previous Prince's court aside from the "former Prince's" ghoulish Ginette Garno, a mild mannered woman who holds the title of pit boss at the Casino. Levi in the presence of Camarilla vamps and otherwise claimed Praxis before offering a deal that is hard to refuse, fistfuls of cold hard cash for information on what happened to the previous court (and for that matter- the other vamps who used to haunt this city).
